

The groundfloor is the city.

Openings connect the floors and unexpected encounters are made.
You can walk through the openings.

The groundfloor is the city.
The building is the city.

Programmed and unprogrammed spaces define the various ways through the building:
fast ones, through the center, along-side the facade.