

An axonometric architectural drawing of a city block. The drawing shows a grid of streets with various buildings of different heights and widths. A prominent feature is a long, multi-story building with a series of horizontal lines on its facade, possibly representing a balcony or a specific architectural detail. The buildings are surrounded by numerous trees, represented by simple geometric shapes. The overall style is clean and technical, typical of architectural visualization.

Axonometrie
Mittlerer Teil

Münchener Straße
INbetween