

the main pathways through the building are widened, resulting in a slightly shifted geometry.